

LOCAL ROUNDUP

Angelos, Kuss PSUC Athletes of the Week

PLATTSBURGH — Sarah Angelos of the women's volleyball team and Mark Kuss of the men's cross-country team have been named Plattsburgh State Athletes of the Week for the period ending Oct. 23.

Sarah Angelos Mark Kuss

Angelos, a June graduate of Beekmantown Central, earned recognition for her performance in the Skidmore Invitational last weekend. She displayed her offensive and defensive abilities by tallying a combined 17 kills, 16 digs and five serving aces.

"Sarah is a very strong offensive player and is solid defensively," head coach Lisa Vicencio said. "She led the team in kills this weekend and is consistently in the top three for kills on the team."

Kuss, from Sandy Creek, led Plattsburgh to its second consecutive conference championship in men's cross-country. He finished in second place with a time of 27 minutes, 2 seconds and earned selection to the All-SUNYAC team and the SUNYAC Hall of Fame.

"Mark's been capable of a performance like this all season," head coach Scott Slade said. "This race now establishes him as one of the team's leaders."

St. Peter's wins elementary soccer title

PLATTSBURGH — St. Peter's completed a perfect season Saturday night, defeating St. John's in the Adirondack Catholic Elementary League soccer playoff championship game, 3-0.

Brian Mockry, Matt Cartier and Danny Giroux scored goals for the 10-0 Eagles, while C.J. Smith, Jonathon Ballantine and Cartier registered assists.

Goaltender Andrew McGill recorded his 10th straight shutout for St. Peter's, which outscored its opponents 58-0 this season and also claimed the league's regular-season crown.

St. John's closed its season with a 7-3-0 mark.

Worley, Trudell win in women's bowling tourney

CHATEAUGAY — Helen Worley of Plattsburgh and Theresa Trudell of Saranac Lake won their respective divisions in the September North Country Progressive Women Bowlers Tournament held at the Chateaugay Community Center.

Worley rolled a 631 series to earn $30 first-place money in Division I while Trudell tossed a 624 to take $30 top money in Division II. There were 23 entries in each division.

Apps tallied a power-play goal off a rebound at 12:21 and Jon Kelley on a wrist shot at 17:39.

Scott Bertoli took a centering pass from Apps to make it 6-0 midway through the third before Tony Ranaldi knocked in a rebound on a Princetown powerplay and Chris Patrick scored on a wrist shot to complete the scoring late in the game.

O'Neil, who made 22 saves, couldn't be faulted on any of the goals. Erasmo Saltarilli, who worked the first period, and James Konde, who played the final two periods, combined for 25 saves while recording the shutout.

"We got a whipping, no doubt about it," Emery said. "I made the schedule and I'm hoping we can grow from this. I could have scheduled some cupcakes, but I didn't."

"The players had better be hurting after a loss like this. We need to learn from this game."

Princeton went two-for-seven on power-play opportunities, while the Cardinals failed to score on their four chances.

Plattsburgh is off for two weeks before returning to the ice for State University of New York Athletic Conference games against Oswego on Nov. 10 and against Cortland Nov. 11.

"Just like they did when they fell behind the day before, Ithaca really came on after we scored and had some decent chances. They stepped up their play. It is a good thing they did not play like that the entire game."

Wiley and her team were disappointed with the loss to Cortland the day before and the Cardinals' head coach was worried about Sunday's contest.

"We had to realize that it wasn't the end of the world," Wiley said. "I was worried this morning (Sunday) and talked to the girls about an hour before the game."

"Now, we can look back and be pleased. The girls showed they were capable of learning after a tough loss, and were able to turn it around. They were excited after today's win."

The victory improved the Cardinals' overall record to 16-3-1.

Erin Shaw made 13 saves in net for Plattsburgh. Ithaca held a 22-20 edge in shots on goal, while Plattsburgh held an 11-6 advantage in corner kicks.

Michele Gully, who missed the first-round game in the state playoffs due to an injury, played both games over the weekend and had a strong game Sunday.

Keri Webb, coming back from an ankle injury, did not play Saturday and played about 20 minutes Sunday.

"Even though Keri was out there for only 20 minutes, she pulled us together against Ithaca," Wiley said.

Section VII soccer capsules

BOYS Class B Semifinals Beekmantown (10-5-1) vs. Seton Catholic (12-4-2) At Plattsburgh High, 2 p.m.

Beekmantown: Nick Fortunatus is the top scorer, racking up 45 points and 17 goals this season, but the Eagles are anything but a one-man show. Three other Beekmantown players - Kevin Lunn, Corey Daniels and Kelly Blake - also have reached double-digits. If the Eagles can generate offensive balance against the Knights, they'll have a chance of visiting the Class B title match again.

Seton Catholic: Much like Beekmantown, the Knights have the sniper (Brian Kiernan, 19-3-11) and a talented supporting cast, led by Travis Zedick's seven goals and 22 points. Seton enters the tournament red-hot, going 5-0-1 in its last six matches, and was unbeaten in its final six matches against Class B teams.

At Stake: The winner goes to the Section VII Class B final Friday night. 1994 Postseason Results: Beekmantown beat Seton 2-1 in the Class B semifinals, before losing the sectional final to Plattsburgh, 2-1. Season series: Each team recorded a 2-1 triumph when hosting the other.

Peru (2-16-0) vs. Plattsburgh (12-3-2) At Seton Catholic, 5 p.m.

Peru: After a 13-match winless drought, Peru tuned up for the postseason in a big way, thumping Saranac Lake 5-0 in the teams' CVAC finale. Goalscoring had been a problem for the Indians - they were shut out 11 times this season - but Peru should have momentum, especially since a scoreless draw with Plattsburgh preceded the victory over Saranac Lake.

Plattsburgh: The CVAC champions begin their pursuit of a second straight title, and offense is the key. No fewer than 15 Hornets recorded at least one point this season, meaning Pete Sullivan's club has plenty of offensive depth. The defense is also strong, yielding less than one goal per outing - and none to Peru this season in two meetings.

At Stake: Friday night's Class B championship match awaits the winner. 1994 Postseason Results: Plattsburgh beat Peru 4-0 in the sectional semifinals and downed Beekmantown 2-1 for the Class B title, beat Massena 2-0 in regional play and lost to Chittenango 3-0 in the state quarterfinals.

Season Series: Plattsburgh won the first meeting 3-0; the teams played to a 0-0 draw late in the season.

Saranac Lake (4-14-0) vs. Northern Adirondack (13-4-1) At Seton Catholic, 3 p.m.

Saranac Lake: The good news for Saranac Lake is a four-win year is better than the 0-17-0 campaign the Redskins suffered through in 1994. The bad news is, after playing decent soccer midway through the season, the Redskins struggled down the stretch, only scoring one goal in their last five matches. The defense, which allowed Peru no goals in the season-opener but has allowed nearly 4 1/2 per outing since, simply must be ready to play today.

Northern Adirondack: The Bobcats came within one point of repeating as CVAC's soccer kings, and, after an 0-5-0 start, are kicking into high gear at the right time. Northern Adirondack has won seven straight matches - by an average margin of more than three goals - and has only dropped one match to a Class C foe all season. Nick Chase (39 points) and Steve Chilton (37 points) lead the high-powered offense, and Jason Seguin - after scoring just one goal in NAC's first 12 matches - has pumped in 11 goals and added three assists in his last six games.

At Stake: With a win, Northern Adirondack would be one win away from claiming its fourth straight Section VII Class C crown.

1994 Postseason History: Saranac Lake lost to Saranac 7-0 in the quarterfinals; Northern Adirondack downed Saranac 2-0 in the semifinals, beat Northeastern Clinton 1-0 for the Class C title, beat Canton 1-0 in the Section VII-X match and lost to Maple Hill, 1-0, in the state quarterfinals.

Season Series: NAC dominated, winning 5-1 and 8-0.

Northeastern Clinton (9-7-2) vs. Saranac (11-5-3) At Seton Catholic, 7 p.m.

Northeastern Clinton: After enduring offensive lulls, the Cougars broke through late in the season, scoring nine goals in their last three matches. Northeastern Clinton's offensive output has been spread fairly evenly - but it struggled against Saranac, scoring just one goal in two matches.

Saranac: Jim Gratto's club had designs on winning the CVAC but went a disappointing 4-4-3 in its last 11 league matches. The postseason provides a second chance, and the Chiefs have the potential to make a serious run at the sectional crown. Re-grasping that early season momentum, however, is crucial.

At Stake: The winner goes to Thursday's Class C championship match. 1994 Postseason History: Northeastern Clinton beat AuSable Valley 2-1 in the semifinals before losing the sectional final to Northern Adirondack, 1-0; Saranac downed Saranac Lake 7-0 in the quarterfinal round and lost to Northern Adirondack, 2-0, in the semifinals.

Season Series: Saranac scored a 2-1 win in its league opener, and played the Cougars to a 0-0 draw midway through the season.
