Typhoon hits Philippines

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — Typhoon Angela battered provinces east of Manila on Thursday, damaging thousands of buildings and forcing more than 135,000 people to flee their homes before it gained strength and headed for the capital.

There were no immediate reports of casualties, although civil defense officials reported at least 15,000 houses destroyed or damaged in Catanduanes province, an island 230 miles east of Manila.

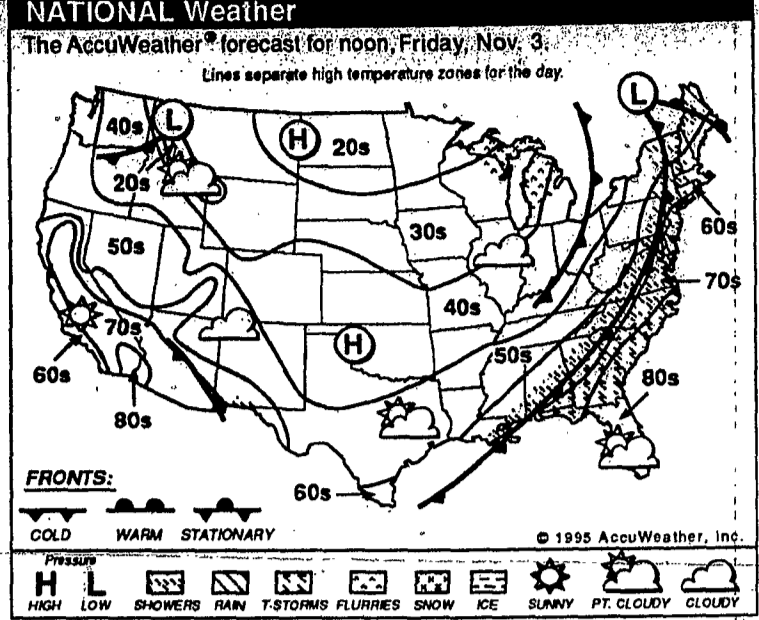

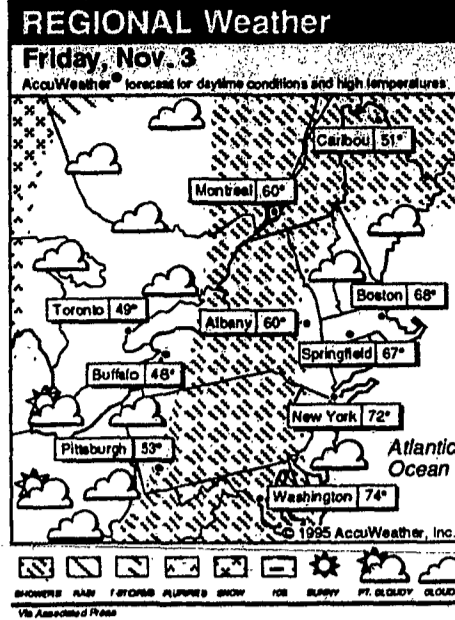

More than 135,000 people were evacuated from their homes in Catanduanes and Camarines Sur and Albay, two provinces in the Bicol region on the southeastern leg of the main Philippine island of Luzon, they said.

The government closed all schools and government offices on Luzon and parts of the central Visayas islands, and people in coastal towns were told to move to higher ground to escape possible high waves.

Winds gusting up to 169 mph knocked down power lines, cutting electricity in most of the eastern region.

The weather bureau said Angela's sustained winds had intensified from 128 mph at 4 p.m. Thursday to 141 mph by midnight.

Angela was 150 miles east of Manila at midnight, before it barreled through other provinces in the Bicol and southern Luzon regions, which have few high mountains that could shatter or weaken it.
